Peter Fiore practices in the Firm's Litigation Department. Peter is an experienced litigator with a diverse practice representing a range of businesses and individuals on both the trial and appellate levels. He focuses his practice on complex business disputes, employment law, civil rights law, cannabis law, consumer protection, and advising financial institutions. Peter's diverse litigation experience allows him to provide unique insight to the Firm's business and financial clients. He does this through preemptive counseling on regulatory and compliance matters in an effort to reduce or eliminate legal expenses down the road.

Peter is incredibly passionate about writing and advancing his clients' interests through effective briefing and zealous advocacy at every state of litigation in a broad range of disciplines. Whether it is plaintiff or defense litigation, the balance of Peter's work is in the courtroom. He prides himself on being a collaborative partner who guides businesses through the complexities of commercial disputes and litigation.
